

Customer Problem

Our customer had an existing product which requires an active Crop Protection product to be sprayed on to a clay granule. With growing demands the customer wanted to outsource product from an alternative source due to logistical considerations.

Along with the requirement for a smooth technical transfer, the key issue was the toxic nature of this product.

The Exwold Experience

The impregnation was successful completed with product fully meeting specification and following manufacture of 100's of tonnes, the process safety remains at 100%.

